The God of Contradictions: An Exploration of Devotional Philosophy of Vallabhacharya

About the Book

Amongst prominent devotional traditions that are based in Braj and epistemologically rooted in the Bhāgavata, Puṇḍarīka offers a distinctive blend of Vedāntic hermeneutics and the culture of Braja. Vallabhācārya declares the love of the gopikās, described in the text of Bhāgavata, as an archetype of complete devotion and hermeneutically connects their perception of the Lord of Braja with the Brahman of the Upaniṣads.

The Puṇḍarīka tradition is essentially characterised by its feature of devotional worship of Kṛṣṇa in a personalised, private setting. This book attempts to unlock the ontological, epistemological, and soteriological details of Vallabhācārya's devotional frame, which balances the paradigmatic love of Braja gopikās and the absolute sovereignty of the Upaniṣadic Brahman.

About the Author

Prakriti Goswami is a doctoral candidate at Indiana University Bloomington with a prominent interest in studying Braja Vaiṣṇavism and the role of poetics, music, and aesthetics in the devotional theism within Indian religiosity.

As a member of the direct lineage of Vallabhacharya, her scholarship mainly focuses on the orthopraxis of Pu??im?rga and the Ved?ntic hermeneutics of ?uddh?dvaita. She is a practitioner of Vallabha Samprad?ya, and her experience with the musical heritage and the liturgical practice of the Pu??ibhakti tradition provides rich ethnographical data for her study. Her first book, Mah?r?sa Man?ju??: Sacred Poetry of the Divine Dance, presents an English translation of Nandad?sa's exquisite poetic rendition of the Bh?gavata's quintet on the mah?r?sa.
